"However, it was only after World War II, and the devastating use of the atomic bomb, that scientists became increasingly proactive in efforts to reduce conflict. On 9 July 1955, Bertrand Russell FRS and Albert Einstein FRS published a manifesto calling on scientists of all political persuasions to address the threat posed by the advent of nuclear weapons. A few days later, the philanthropist Cyrus S. Eaton offered to sponsor a conference on this theme in Pugwash, Nova Scotia.
